

Garden design firm flourishing

REBECCA Smith Garden Design has started off its first year trading near Alton with a bang, with projects in Hawkey, Haslemere and East Worldham all running concurrently.

Rebecca Smith Garden Design was originally established in Haslemere in 2008 but moved to Wyck, near Alton, in 2012 and offers a range of services from a full garden design and rebuild with personally recommended landscaping firms to one-off garden consultancy work.

Rebecca originally trained in horticulture, receiving her RHS Level 2 Certificate (Credit) in 2006 from the English Gardening School in London.

Also she successfully opened her own family garden on the outskirts of Haslemere for the National Garden Scheme (West Sussex) for three years between 2006 and 2008 while retraining in Garden Design at the Garden Design School.

Since then, her business has gone from strength to strength. Her past work ranges from large family gardens in and around Haslemere to small town gardens within the St Cross area of Winchester.

All are designed with the client in mind; their time, resources and gardening skills are all considered when the outline plans are drafted.

Rebecca's speciality in Historical Architecture means that she is especially well qualified to design gardens for period properties, but is by no means restricted to making traditional gardens:
